'May Peace Prevail on Earth' – Not just a slogan, but a real aspiration for the thousands of children from 62 countries who entered this year's Peace Pals<sup>1</sup> art competition.

For its twentieth anniversary, Peace Pals International – an initiative of the World Peace Prayer Society<sup>2</sup> – has joined forces with IUCN<sup>3</sup> and DiversEarth<sup>4</sup> to inspire peace education around the globe in relation to environmental protection, with the theme of Nature for All – Loving the Earth.

"Nature for All is a global movement to inspire people from all sectors of society to connect with nature and take action to support its conservation. At its core is a very simple idea: the more people experience, connect with, and share their love of nature, the more support there will be for its conservation." said Sean Southey, Chair of the Commission on Communications and Education (IUCN CEC).

Liza Zogib, Director of DiversEarth added: "Children have such power because they can ignite the flame of compassion in even the hardest of hearts. Environmental and climate concerns that we adults seem to get easily bored with are a real worry for our children. It's simply not possible to ignore their voices any longer."

On November 21, 2017, the Awards Ceremony for this year's winners will be held in La Cité du Temps, Geneva, Switzerland. With keynotes from IUCN President, Zhang Xinsheng, and Director General, Inger Andersen, and a highly anticipated performance by Kenji Williams of Bella Gaia<sup>5</sup>, the evening promises to
